Mental Health Week 2018

With one in five Australians experiencing mental health problems last year and the annual cost of mental illness reaching $10.9 billion, mental health is becoming a defining issue for the Australian community.

So instead of ignoring the problem - let's talk about it.

Now in its 51st year, Mental Health Week is one of the most recognised and longest running community health campaigns in Western Australia.

The State's peak body for mental health, the WA Association for Mental Health, hosts Mental Health Week in Western Australia in partnership with the WA Mental Health Commission.

In 2018, we are supporting a range of targeted events engaging a broad dissection of the public during 7 -14 October 2018.

About Mental Health Week

Mental Health Week engages with around 250,000 Western Australians and aims to promote social and emotional wellbeing, encourage people to maximise their health potential, enhance the coping capacity of communities, families, individuals, and increase mental health recovery. It's a national and annual event, held in October to coincide with World Mental Health Day (10 October).

2018 Theme

Each year Mental Health Week adopts a particular theme with specific key messages around which the week's events will focus.

This year the theme is 'Mental health starts where we live learn, work and play' in recognition that everyone in the community can play a part in supporting positive mental wellbeing.

Invitation to partner

You are invited to be part of the action. In 2018, we are looking to partner with several organisations who wish to align their business with those in a large (and growing) mental health sector.

Mental Health Week provides sponsors with an opportunity to promote their products, services and brand through cause-related marketing to a large portion of the WA community and offers a socially responsible brand alignment that directly supports better mental health outcomes in the community.

In the lead up to the week, strategically planned activities will be undertaken to ensure events and promotions are targeted at the right audience, ensuring sponsor organisations gain their desired brand exposure.

Distribution and reach

Promotional material will be distributed via a number of channels in the lead up to Mental Health Week, ensuring high attendance at events and maximum exposure of sponsor brands in support of the cause.

- Extensive social media campaign, which reached 160,000 views in 2017 and has 2500 Facebook followers, 1400 Twitter followers and 500 Instagram followers
- Mental Health Week partnership with a Media Partner will ensure comprehensive media coverage in the lead-up to and during the week
- Mental Health Week resources packs (distributed to approximately 30,000 people and organisations around WA, including event activators at 130 community events)
- Flyers displayed at other expos, stalls and events that WAAMH attends / sponsors
- Displayed in our training material hand-outs (approx. 3100 participants per annum)
- Mental Health Week website (average of 8,000 page views/week) mhw.waamh.org.au
- Promotion in WAAMH's monthly eNewsletter (approx. 5,000 subscribers) and Mental Health Week eNews updates (approx 1600 subscribers)
- WAAMH has over 200 members to cross promote through their online and physical networks, including all large mental health providers in WA
- Professional distribution of flyers and posters to local libraries, cafes and community centres
- Mental Health Week promoted on various Government websites displaying community events.

World Mental Health Day

SPREADING THE WORD ONE COMMUTER AT A TIME!

In 2018, the flagship event of Mental Health Week in WA will happen on World Mental Health Day (October 10) and involve an army of volunteers at Perth transport hubs during the morning peak period engaging with commuters and handing out free resource packs with information to promote positive mental wellbeing, and information on what to do if someone tells you "they're not OK."

In addition to this, more than 130 events will be held in the community throughout the week and promoted via the Mental Health Week website.
